

The Times 10 November 2008

HIV research hope

Engineered T-cells can see through the many disguises HIV uses to hide from the body's defences, according to research in the journal Nature Medicine by scientists from Cardiff University, the University of Pennsylvania and the Oxford-based company Adaptimmune. Trials on infected patients are expected to start next year.